

The Virginia State Curriculum Committee is responsible for developing statewide curriculum frameworks that guide local curriculum frameworks. These frameworks inform the selection of instructional materials and resources, which are then used in classroom instruction and assessed through various assessment methods.

This diagram illustrates the interconnected nature of the curriculum process. It shows how statewide and local frameworks lead to the selection of instructional materials and resources, which are then used in classroom instruction and assessed. The flowchart emphasizes the continuous and reciprocal relationships between these various components.
