The controlled-electives disjunction in the history of philosophy is eliminated and PHIL 324 and 325 are added as required courses.

PHIL 122 is no longer a required course, and PHIL 101/PHIL 110 is eliminated as a required course disjunction.

PHIL 221 is now a required course.

The controlled-electives disjunction in metaphysics and epistemology is eliminated. PHIL 330, 420, 421, and 460 are now included in a new controlled-elective category, Knowledge and Reality which also includes two new courses (PHIL 350, 300) and an existing course (PHIL 360).

The new controlled elective category Ethics and Values comprises three new courses (PHIL 240,

c. Rationale for change

The most significant change is the addition of a controlled-elective category in Ethics and ethics, political philosophy, and philosophy of art—is one of the main subfields of philosophy, but it did not have a significant place in our old program. Requiring six credits of coursework in value theory keeps our curriculum current with trends in the discipline. Second, there was a felt enforced and the department takes it to be unnecessary.

III. Implementation

1. How will the proposed revision affect students already in the existing program?

Students currently in the program may choose between the old and new requirements. Students declaring the major after the change takes effect must complete the new requirements.

2. Are faculty resources adequate? If you are not requesting or have not been authorized to hire additional faculty, demonstrate how this course will fit into the schedule(s) of current faculty.

With our current complement and staffing commitments, the department can reasonably expect to staff and fill at least one section of each of the three required courses once every two years
